

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation and violates the FCC's equal time provisions.

If Sinclair is going to show an anti-Kerry film just before the election, they are obligated to give equal time to the other side - how about Fahrenheit 9/11 or the biographical documentary about Kerry, "Going Upriver" also prior to the election and during the same kind of great timeslot they're giving their editorial piece. Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest.

Equal time.
